CRYPTOLOGIC EXPANDS UK SHAREHOLDER BASE

January 31, 2005 (Toronto, ON) - CryptoLogic Inc., a leading software developer to the global Internet gaming market, announced today a placing through the facilities of the London Stock Exchange to a number of prominent UK institutional investors of an aggregate of 1,075,000 common shares in the company at a price of £12.50 per share (approximately Cdn$29.24), representing approximately 8% of the issued share capital.

The shares were purchased from Andrew Rivkin and Mark Rivkin, the founders and former CEO and COO respectively of the company from inception to 2000. The transaction was facilitated by Bridgewell Securities Limited of London, England, CryptoLogic's recently appointed UK corporate broker.

We are delighted to have attracted blue chip UK institutional shareholders, and view their investment as a positive endorsement of CryptoLogic's growth strategy, said Lewis Rose, CryptoLogic's President and CEO. The UK is emerging as the global centre for regulated online gaming, and the diversification of our shareholder base into this major market reflects our international expansion and should help enhance liquidity in the London market.
