(Attach Extra Sheets if Needed)

The Company will be delayed in the filing of its Form 10-Q due May 11, 2012, due to a delay in the preparation of its financial statements that cannot be eliminated without unreasonable effort or expense. In conjunction with its financial analysis and reporting procedures and based on its current market capitalization, the Company has been evaluating its goodwill and long-lived assets including its intangible assets for impairment and its deferred tax assets for a valuation allowance for the first quarter of 2012. The process of evaluation and determination of the amount of impairment of goodwill and long-lived assets has extended beyond the date on which the Company's Form 10-Q became due. In connection with item (3) of Part IV, below, in Exhibit A to this Form 12b-25, we describe the valuation allowance we expect to record against the Company's deferred tax assets.

EXHIBIT A

Explanation of change in results of operations

for the fiscal quarters ended April 3, 2011 and April 1, 2012

For the fiscal quarter ended April 3, 2011, Intermec, Inc.'s (the "Company") revenues were $178.5 million and the Company incurred a net loss of approximately $(6.1) million or $(0.10) per share.

For the fiscal quarter ended April 1, 2012, the Company's revenues were $179.7 million. On a preliminary basis, as reported in the Company's Current Report on Form 8-K dated April 30, 2012 (the "April 30 Form 8-K"), before determination of the amount of impairment of goodwill and long-lived assets and before the increase in the valuation allowance against deferred tax assets described below, the Company calculated a net loss of approximately $(16.4) million or $(0.27) per share.

We have now determined that we will record an additional valuation allowance of $206.9 million against the Company's net deferred tax assets for the fiscal quarter ended April 1, 2012. This action results in a non-cash expense in the first fiscal quarter of 2012, in the amount of $206.9 million. Our net deferred tax assets balance, after taking this charge is $14.0 million as of April 1, 2012.

In addition, we anticipate recording an impairment charge against the Company's goodwill for the fiscal quarter ended April 1, 2012. This action will result in a non-cash expense in the fiscal quarter ended April 1, 2012. Our goodwill balance before taking this charge is $143.5 million as of April 1, 2012. This impairment charge will be an estimate based on completion of step one of the goodwill impairment test. Accounting rules require a two-step goodwill impairment test whereby the first step, used to identify potential impairment, compares the fair value of a reporting unit with its carrying amount including goodwill. If the estimated fair value of a reporting unit is less than its carrying amount, goodwill of the reporting unit is potentially impaired, thus the second step of the goodwill impairment test is used to quantify the amount of any impairment that exists. We will complete step one of our interim tests for impairment of goodwill as of April 1, 2012, and due to the complexity and timing of this analysis we intend to complete step two of this analysis and adjust the impairment amount appropriately as we prepare our financial results for the second fiscal quarter of 2012, as needed.

In comparing year over year results, the results for the first fiscal quarter of 2012 included the results of businesses acquired in 2011; whereas the results for the corresponding quarter of 2011 included results of only one of the acquired businesses, for one month of the quarter. The business as it existed in the first quarter of 2011 and prior to the acquisitions is substantially reflected in the segments named Intermec branded products and Intermec branded services. Revenue reported in the Intermec branded products segment is lower than the revenue reported for that segment for the prior year period, by more than 10%.
