May 2009 Order Comments:

The trailing three-month GAAP order rate for Emerson was down 25 percent, with currency exchange rates negatively impacting orders by approximately 3 percentage points. Underlying order trends for the month of May were slightly better than April, but still reflect continued weakness in end-market demand across global markets. With order trends continuing to be down in excess of 20 percent, Emerson has increased global best cost actions and now expects to incur restructuring expense of $275 to $300 million for the fiscal year to aggressively implement cost repositioning programs across the company, to ensure we are well positioned for the global economic recovery in late 2010.

Process Management order rates were down 15 to 20 percent in the trailing three-month period. Currency exchange rates negatively impacted the order growth rate by approximately 3 percentage points, a smaller negative impact than the March and April trailing three-month periods, due to the recent weakening of the U.S. dollar. Orders remained mixed among end markets, with power and water markets strong and chemical and refining weak.

Industrial Automation order trends remained extremely weak, with nonresidential gross fixed investment at very depressed levels globally. Power generation demand continued to deteriorate and had a significant negative impact on order trends. Currency exchange rates negatively impacted orders by approximately 5 percentage points in the trailing three-month period.

Strength in the China network power systems business was more than offset by weakness across the balance of the Network Power business segment, especially in North America and Europe.

Edgar Filing: EMERSON ELECTRIC CO - Form 8-K

Climate Technologies order trends for May, although still negative, were sequentially better than March or April. U.S. air-conditioning order rates helped drive this improvement as seasonal replacement needs increased entering the summer months, and preseason channel-inventory buildup was lower than normal. This business appears to be stabilizing and well positioned for an Asian and North American recovery.

While slowdowns in spending across nonresidential end markets continued, consumer-related businesses in the Appliance and Tools business segment seem to be stabilizing at low end-market demand levels.
