Employee FAQ

1. Why is Integrys combining with Wisconsin Energy?
We believe the combination with Wisconsin Energy provides a unique opportunity to build on Integrys’ strong platform to deliver additional benefits to customers, offer more diverse opportunities for employees, and create value for our shareholders. By joining forces with Wisconsin Energy, we will be well positioned to take our successful operations and energy delivery programs to the next level – with a continued commitment to accelerated investment in our territories – while also continuing to support the communities we serve. For our shareholders, the transaction will provide significant immediate value and the opportunity to participate in the upside potential of the combined organization. Together, we are creating a larger, more diverse Midwest electric and gas delivery company with the operational expertise, scale and financial resources to meet the region’s future energy needs.
 2. Who is Wisconsin Energy Corporation?
Based in Milwaukee, Wisconsin Energy has been in the utility business for more than 120 years, with predecessor companies that also date back to the late 1800s. Today, they are Wisconsin’s largest electric and gas distribution company with approximately 2.2 million metered customers, and like Integrys, they are committed to operational excellence, their people and the communities they serve.
 3. What does this announcement mean for me?
This combination is more about long-term growth and building on the successful operations of both companies and less about cost cutting. Accordingly, there will be little change in the way our field and energy delivery teams carry out their daily responsibilities. That said, we recognize that some people in our corporate and shared services teams may be affected in the future, but it is far too early to speculate about how needs will change. Just like us, Wisconsin Energy’s primary focus is on safe, reliable and efficient operations and service to its customers, and when there has been a need to reduce staffing, Wisconsin Energy’s strong preference is to use attrition, retirements and voluntary severance as the path to achieve the needed results.
- It’s important to note that we are in the early days. Today’s announcement is just the first step in the process, and the transaction is not expected to close until the summer of 2015. Until then, it should be business as usual at Integrys.
4. Why is combining with Wisconsin Energy good for our employees?
As you know, we compete every day to attract – and retain – top-tier talent and being part of a larger, stronger company will deliver long-term opportunities for our employees. This includes working for a more diverse electric and gas company that has greater scale, the ability to collaborate with – and learn from – a larger set of teammates that share a commitment to operational excellence and access to a wider range professional development opportunities that a bigger company can offer.

5. Should I anticipate layoffs?

For our field and energy delivery teams, there will be little change in the way they carry out their daily responsibilities. While some people in our corporate and shared services teams may be affected in the future, it is far too early to speculate about how needs will change. Just like us, Wisconsin Energy's primary focus is on safe, reliable and efficient operations and service to its customers, and when there has been a need to reduce staffing, Wisconsin Energy's strong preference is to use attrition, retirements and voluntary severance as the path to achieve the needed results.

We are committed to updating our employees as we work to complete the transaction. Also, it's important to note that we are in the early days. Today's announcement is just the first step in the process, and the transaction is not expected to close until the summer of 2015. Until then, it should be business as usual at Integrys.

6. Will the name of the Company change? What about regulated utilities?

After the close of the transaction, the combined company will be named WEC Energy Group, Inc. Our operating utilities will continue to operate under the same brands.

7. Will my compensation or benefits change?

Today's announcement is just the first step in the process, and the transaction is not expected to close until the summer of 2015. There will be no changes prior to closing – and after closing, there will be a one-year compensation and benefit continuation pledge.

8. What unions represent Wisconsin Energy?

Approximately 2,800 Wisconsin Energy employees are represented by five bargaining units. The largest are the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (Local 2150) with approximately 1,800 employees and the International Union of Operating Engineers (Local 420) with approximately 500 employees.

9. Will Wisconsin Energy honor our existing union agreements?

Yes. Wisconsin Energy will honor all existing labor agreements with Integrys' unions.

10. What does this mean for our local communities?

We believe the combination will build on our strong energy delivery and customer service foundation. Utilities are capital intensive businesses, meaning scale – both operational and financial – is critically important. By joining forces with Wisconsin Energy, we will be a larger, stronger company that will have an enhanced financial profile and be able to take advantage of efficiencies of scale and other cost management best practices to mitigate the rate pressures of our infrastructure investments. Stable rates and increased reliability clearly benefit our residential customers, but these also are important factors when companies are making decisions on where to build their new facility or expand their existing operations. In short, a stronger local utility company increases our region's ability to compete for and retain businesses and the jobs they create.

Importantly, we will also maintain our historic levels of charitable contributions and community involvement. Giving back to our communities is core to who we are and our commitment is not going to change. In addition, we will be able to combine our shared commitment to supplier diversity to identify opportunities to increase procurement from minority, women-owned, veteran-owned and service disabled-owned businesses.

11. What should I do if someone outside the Company contacts me about the deal?
If you are contacted by the media or other outside parties regarding the transaction, please direct them to our media hotline at 1-800-977-2250.
