Frequently Asked Questions - Updated September 4, 2018

Transactional:

Did we report Q2 results and how will future quarter earnings be communicated to shareholders in the period until the close of the transaction?

Yes, we shared our Q2 2018 earnings results in a press release on August 8, 2018, at the same time that we announced the transaction. As a publicly traded company, we will continue to communicate our earnings in accordance with SEC requirements and investor expectations until further notice.

Will the publicly traded stock remain on the market until the deal closes? Will Dun & Bradstreet still have shareholders after the close of the transaction?

We will remain listed on the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) until the close of the transaction. After that time, we will become a private company and our stock will no longer be trading on a public stock exchange.

Following the closing of the transaction, all of the outstanding shares of D&B stock will be owned by an investor group (the Investor Group) led by CC Capital, Cannae Holdings and funds affiliated with Thomas H. Lee Partners, L.P. (THL), along with certain other minority co-investors.

Will the decision to go private inhibit our ability or desires to acquire other companies/ competitors?

We understand that the Investor Group is open to exploring organic or acquisitive opportunities to supplement and accelerate the growth of Dun & Bradstreet to re-invigorate growth.

I've read a press release from a law firm that suggests the sale of our Company to a consortium may be unfair to shareholders. Is there any guidance to share with those who ask me about it?

We believe any such claims are without merit.

Our Board of Directors carefully considered the proposed transaction, in light of other alternatives, with input from outside financial and legal advisors and, after due consideration, the Board determined that the transaction is in the best interest of the company and its shareholders. We will be filing a proxy statement that describes in more detail the Board of Director's considerations and reasons for the merger. We urge you to review the proxy statement once it becomes available.

What experience do our new investors have in the data market? Please share examples of their successes.

At the August 9th Global Town Hall, Chinh Chu, founder and senior managing director at CC Capital spoke about his experience taking Black Knight Inc. private in 2014 in collaboration with Bill Foley, the chairman of Cannae Holdings. Black Knight is a company in the information services sector focused on the home mortgage market. Over a period of approximately five years, Black Knight's market share and revenue declined, prior to a buyout transaction led by Fidelity National Financial (of which Bill Foley is the non-executive chairman). Over a four-year period, Chinh Chu and Bill Foley made a number of operational improvements to streamline processes, accelerate decision-making, increase customer focus, as well as optimize the product portfolio and salesforce. Productivity improved, and importantly, revenue growth went from zero percent to high single digits. Today, the company is once again publicly traded, reinvigorated, more efficient and growing.

Before founding CC Capital, Chinh Chu led Blackstone's participation in an $11.3 billion leveraged buyout of SunGard Data Systems in 2005. Chinh Chu is presently Lead Independent Director of NCR Corporation.

Operational:

Are McKinsey's findings still viable and how are we implementing them? Will the new investors and organization be leveraging the work done by McKinsey?

McKinsey validated our strategy and worked with our management team to outline plans for simplifying our business and accelerating our results.

In collaboration with the Investor Group, to the extent required under the merger agreement, we expect to continue to move forward with simplifying and accelerating our business.

In addition, employees across the business are looking inward at their own processes to simplify them and accelerate their results. Communications about these ongoing Simplify & Accelerate efforts can be found on The Hub.

What is the status of the CEO search? Will Tom Manning remain the CEO after the transaction close?

Tom Manning will lead Dun & Bradstreet as CEO through the closing of the transaction. This agreement has only just been announced, and it is too early to respond about post-closing specifics associated with the transaction.

What is the role of our current Board over this next 6 months and who will be on our Board after the transaction closes?

We do not expect the composition of the Board of Directors to change prior to the closing of the transaction.

Following the closing of the transaction, the composition of the Board of Directors will be determined by the Investor Group.

Do we know where we will focus our future investments related to our solutions, and will we be consolidating our product portfolio?

This agreement has only just been announced, so it is too soon to say. For now, we expect to continue simplifying and accelerating our business. Communications about this and other ongoing Simplify & Accelerate efforts can be found on The Hub.

Will we be looking to accelerate our investments in emerging markets like India and China?

This agreement has not changed our view on the growth opportunities that exist in emerging markets such as China and India.

Will our culture change as a result of this transaction?

Our culture will continue to be an integral part of our company's success and growth moving forward. As we have today, our culture will remain firmly focused on our people, processes, and mission.

How are customers being alerted to the transaction announcement?

We continue to thoughtfully reach out to customers, partners and vendors through face-to-face meetings, phone calls, and emails as appropriate. We are telling our customers, partners and vendors it's business as usual at Dun & Bradstreet.

Employees in customer-facing roles have been provided with key messages about the announcement that they can use with their customers. If you do not have these, or have further questions, please reach out to your manager or sales leader for next steps.
