Integration Team Leads Meet for KICKOFF IN GREENSBURG, PA.

Nearly 30 FirstEnergy and Allegheny Energy employees leads of the nine merger Integration Teams and members of the Program Management Office (PMO) gathered at Allegheny Energy's Greensburg, Pa., headquarters on Monday, April 12. The kickoff provided the opportunity for the leads to meet one another and understand expectations for the integration work.

Executive Vice President and President, FirstEnergy Generation and Steering Committee Chair Gary Leidich, and Chief Operating Officer, Generation and Allegheny Steering Committee Lead Curtis Davis, opened the meeting by offering their thoughts on how the teams will work together, including the deliverables each is responsible for producing.

As the teams begin their work, initial decisions include which functions should be operationalized (applying one existing company model to the other company); merged (by combining both companies' practices); or reinvented (by starting with a clean sheet of paper and crafting new practices for certain functions).

The real opportunity for our team leads is to ensure that when the merger closes, their work will result in a better company, says Gary. We need the teams to determine what approaches make sense and to accomplish our integration work.

Curtis covered the expectations for the teams and stated, It will be critical for these teams to work well together to help build a better company. Everyone will need to be open-minded and communicate with candor. It's crucial that we all respect the process. Merger Integration Teams will work on combining company operations post-merger, while the rest of our respective companies continue to focus on delivering 2010 results.

The schedule for deliverables also was presented, which includes charter documents that team leads will complete by the April 28 full-team kickoff. The teams also will develop preliminary recommendations, then final recommendations for Day One (the first day the two companies can operate as one company), Day 100 after the merger closes and long-term plans for each functional area.

Team Leads Meet in Greensburg (Continued from the cover)

Program Management Office (PMO)

Responsibilities

Program Managers Marty Hall, vice president, Energy Policy, FirstEnergy, and Allegheny Lead David Fisfis, Deputy General Counsel and executive director, Special Projects, presented information on the role of the PMO, which coordinates and supports the teams and their work and reports to the Steering Committee. The PMO will help support an efficient, streamlined integration process and track and report the work of each team.

One of the significant responsibilities for the PMO is to address cases in which the same subject occurs in various business functions and, therefore, across teams, such as safety. Several teams, including Human Resources (HR), Generation, Utility Operations and Transmission have safety practices, processes and procedures as part of their work scopes to review. Although such subjects must be assessed by each team, one team must be assigned responsibility for final recommendations on that common item, and in our safety example, that is HR. The coordination among teams in addressing shared business aspects will be key to an efficient process.

Legal Guidelines

FirstEnergy attorneys John Luecken and Morgan Parke provided the rules of the road for working with confidential company materials. John and Morgan reemphasized that until the merger closes, FirstEnergy and Allegheny Energy must remain separate and independent companies. They provided additional guidelines for the teams work, including:

The focus of integration planning efforts must be on the post-merger world. No coordination of pre-closing conduct is permissible.

Planning activities and information gathered by the Integration Teams should be confined to approved planning team members.

Teams should follow approved plans for team member roles, scope of the teams work and scope of information of the merging companies that will need to be gathered/reviewed.

Information obtained in the integration planning process should not be used for current business purposes.

Different Integration Team members may have different restrictions on the types of information they are permitted to review.

Both companies Legal Departments must be consulted before Integration Teams hold meetings that involve discussions of competitively sensitive information. Meeting agendas and participant lists must be prepared in advance, approved by Legal and retained by the Integration Teams.

FirstEnergy Files Preliminary S-4 Containing
Information Related to the Proposed Merger

On March 23, FirstEnergy filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) a preliminary Registration Statement on Form S-4 (S-4) relating to its merger with Allegheny Energy. The filing, which serves as a joint proxy statement/prospectus, is one of several regulatory steps in the merger process that must be accomplished before the merger may be completed.

Once the S-4 is cleared by the SEC, FirstEnergy and Allegheny anticipate sending the joint proxy statement/prospectus to their respective shareholders and setting dates for separate meetings of shareholders to vote on proposals relating to the merger. At Allegheny Energy's special meeting, shareholders will be asked to vote on the proposed merger transaction; at FirstEnergy's special meeting, shareholders will vote on whether to issue the shares of stock to Allegheny Energy stockholders that will be used to finance the transaction and on other matters relating to the merger. The S-4 is a required filing for most publicly traded companies planning to merge operations in stock-for-stock transactions.

What's in the S-4?

The S-4 contains a significant amount of information about the merger, announced Feb. 11, 2010, including:

Key financial information for both companies, including pro forma* calculations of the combined company

A summary of the merger agreement, along with a copy of the full agreement

A narrative of the significant activities taken by each company leading up to the announcement of the merger

A summary of the required regulatory approvals

Questions and answers about the special shareholder meetings

The preliminary S-4 is available on the new joint merger Web site, www.firstenergycorp.com/allegHENYmerger, and on the SEC's Web site, www.sec.gov.

The merger is expected to close in the first half of 2011, subject to customary closing conditions that include regulatory approvals.

**Pro forma financial data comprises historical financial data that has been changed and combined to indicate the effect of the proposed transaction on historical results.*

Q I've heard that many mergers in the utility industry fail to close. Why do we think FirstEnergy will be able to successfully complete the merger with Allegheny Energy?

A While it's true that some announced mergers do not always close, FirstEnergy has had different experiences. FirstEnergy is a result of two successful mergers in the last 15 years.

The boards of both FirstEnergy and Allegheny believe shareholders will benefit from owning a larger, stronger company that is better positioned for future growth and success in competitive markets. A description of the reasons supporting the decision of both companies to enter into the merger agreement is included in the Registration Statement on Form S-4.

Pension, Hiring

Q Will Allegheny employees lose credit for their years of service with the company or have to work five years with FirstEnergy before being vested in the pension plan?

A No, Allegheny employees who are employees on Day One will retain their years of service for the purposes of vesting in the pension plan and/or eligibility for other benefits.

Q I am an Allegheny retiree. How will the merger affect the retirements of those who are already collecting a pension? Will our retirement amount be the same as it is now?

A For those retirees who already receive benefits from the Allegheny Energy Retirement Plan, there will be no change. Those who are vested in the plan retain the right to receive the benefits accrued (earned), irrespective of the merger.

Q Allegheny Energy recently posted 14 new positions in its Customer Management group to implement energy efficiency and conservation programs. In light of the merger, why are we adding these jobs now?

A Until the merger is completed, both Allegheny and FirstEnergy must operate as independent companies. Both Allegheny and FirstEnergy will continue to post for positions that each believe are critical to running their respective businesses.

Q As a New Jersey Line crew supervisor with FirstEnergy, how much flexibility would I have to relocate to Allegheny's territory after the merger?

A The new company will have an internal job posting Web site that will list open positions from all over our system to which employees may apply.

Integration Teams

Q Where will the Integration Teams be physically located?

A The Integration Teams and Program Management Office (PMO) will be located at Summit Park Square, a building in Akron, Ohio, where FirstEnergy leases space, about seven miles from the FirstEnergy General Office in downtown Akron.

Q Will there be a transition team established for Customer Service?

A Customer Service integration will be addressed by the Utility Operations Team.

Q When will you file the applications for state regulatory approval?

A We anticipate making filings in Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia in the second quarter of 2010.

A The Merger News will be published as needed, when there is information to report regarding the progress of the merger approvals or the work of the Integration Teams.

Q What is the expected time for a response to questions regarding the merger that are sent via e-mail?

A Although we may be unable to answer all questions we receive, look for answers to employee questions in upcoming editions of Merger News.
